Purpose of Organizers.

In a circular letter sent to residents of the community by William Knowles Cooper, general chairman of the campaign committee, the purpose of the organizers of the church is explained.

"Cleveland Park is an unusually attractive residential community," says Mr. Cooper. "It is made up of home-loving and loval people, and is unique in this respect, that its social and religious contacts have not centered in the community, but have continued in those sections of the city from which the population was largely drawn. The time has arrived when local interests must begin to kitchen and dining room.

"The building will be so constructed that it may be easily united with and become a part of the church building later to be erected, facing Lowell street. Following the trend of thought, the church will be more distinctly a house of worship, and will not be available generally for any other purpose. The architecture of the two buildings will be made to conform one to the other and will be typical of the residential neighborhood."
